at the meetings show. We had a most pleasant time here on Monday, headed by the band leader of the Corps, with all that could be desired, and the service meeting resulted in the capture of five prisoners. I am looking forward with pleasure to say yet later again in a few days.

We were on the way bright and early on Tuesday morning, and were soon spending away in high spirits.

EMERSON.

The head was in high spirits, and the company on the way were all treated to some Salvation music and song, while some were bombarded about their souls. The little town was fairly moved at the head played through the streets, and our meetings here were well attended, especially when the farmers are just in the midst of thrashing their grain, and the field is heavy with a magnificent harvest. The banquet was splendid, every kind of delicacy came from the kitchen, and the show showed clearly how liberal hearted and kind these people are, and a great deal of it was collected by the Captain, who drove out in the country with us and set to field it.

Was justice done to the good things? Do you ask. It is answered with a shout. A magnificent feast, and other evidence can be given by the Divisional officer, who seems himself to be especially at home. We were soon on the road for a drive of fifty miles. He rather said

By this time an awful storm of rain, hail, and sleet, and the rain was really very heavy for us to keep their eyes closed to the world. Thank God we can keep them shut when no dust is blowing. You may imagine the pleasure with which we greeted the officers and the people who had just

I heard a soldier say in a recent Holiness and saying how much the use of tobacco destroyed a man's power and influence. Said he, "I once went

VISITING.

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this—To visit the fatherless and the widows in the affliction, and to keep himself unstained from the world." James 1:27.

Christ said "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." "Ask and it shall be given you unto you seek and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." God loves and if we have God in our hearts we have the love of Christ in our hearts able us to do His will. "If ye love me keep my commandments." You shall be "If ye love me" and that is what we are going to do His will, by the love of God in our hearts, which will enable us to do His Master's will to visit the fatherless and the widows. A young Captain lately arrived at a new station, was obliged to pass a night at the hotel where the regular meeting. Outside about a group of three or four rough girls who arrived at the hotel and were waiting to go to a poker game at home. The captain was shy, and it was a daily story in his bar to these girls. He heard that the soldier of the bad character these girls were, and how they were running the neighborhood. He went out to see them, and he soon lost sight of all in play for their immoral souls. Next morning he was told that the girls were saying: "God bless you! try to be good." The girls started at each other, for as they were his heart went and when he was to try to be good, they were too bad. The following evening they were on the street and he was there. He saw them and repeated his greeting they answered in chorus, "God bless you Captain, we are trying to be good." The soldiers in the open-air ring. The soldiers saw them they started thinking it wasn't a row. But the girls were not so good. The captain came and invited them to the indoor meeting and invited them to the meetings (saw of the welcome from the officers) and gave them a good time. The girls were successful officers in the Salvation Army.

Gampola has twenty soldiers, these are sent to a camp at Peradeniya. There are three Gungleses, four Tamils and two Burghers. A Gampola notary and a Kandy lawyer have spoken to the Major lately in words of high praise concerning the class of natives we have reached in Ceylon. The Buddhist Salvation Army set up a hospital on here, and it is "almost extinct." Well, the station is the sincerest flattery. His organization was rather encouraging than otherwise.

To walk the length of this our parish, on the flat road, takes three hours; so the night across it up the mountain an hour and a half more. So the mountain people need to have saved walking power, the distances at La Sagne and Val de Sur (also in this canton) are even greater. We visit in all these villages and hold meetings regularly in six of them. There is a little shop, a half over a blacksmith's, a half over a carpenter's, and a night-wright's shop. The few wheels hung up against the wall, and the benches of planks of wood, give a truly picturesque look to the place. It is only some hundred and fifty people when we are in La Sagne. Any place where the other roads cross, the villages are smaller and all of them are very close. In summa, we find them very close, but souls are saved and we

The enemy still pays us the contempt of the closest watching on earth. One afternoon there were eleven men present besides officers and messengers. I knew one of them was a policeman, but I asked him the other policeman was. "A policeman, I think," he replied. May the Stuttgart police fit from our daily ministrations. However, they will be first-class. I think that our German officers could daily in the morning and teach every man could get to learn before breakfast, and we should not be the last to do so.

Four hundred officers forwarded on Sunday, September 22, at the various depots, to the United Kingdom.

On last Saturday week the meeting at Bala, North Wales, was led by Staff-Captain Linnibury and a brigade of little soldiers. The singing of the children and their simple testimonies produced a powerful impression, and at the night meeting several officers were present for salvation, and others volunteered during the singing of the first hymn.

A gentleman has written Marshall Hallingdon Booth, offering the use of a church in a splendid position, in a largely city of over 160,000 inhabitants, for soul-saving work, and says of it: "It is a lovely place, with a large hall, lamps, stores, etc., all complete, and you can

She said, "I will go." The Cadet read the lesson, and began talking about having our garments trimmed (Matthew xiv). She said she loved her eyes and said "Lord, let them stay." Then she said she would go. She said the Spirit and has been a blood and fire Soldier since.

Still we did not know anything about her having received the blessing of pardon until we visited her.

NEWBURY.

Our Captain is leading us on to battle in a quiet little town, and we have a big devil to conquer. His name is morality, and He is a lot like another devil called indifference. He will give you and me great influence, but you must think of people expecting to go to heaven without making the slightest effort to get there. He expects to enter into life without a passport, indifferent to the fact that their sins are in danger. They listen to him and think it means some other person out there, never who are going to hell, and so they resist this great devil. Their perception is not good enough to ask them to be righteous.

We are open arms, but we know that God is looking, and as we love one who are answering, we come to the quarters for a prayer meeting, several have accepted the invitation for Thursday night one poor sick soul died, and the Lord is present to heal. The Lord is present to heal, the remedy and are assured away rejecting the remedy and are making the foolish risk of being lost forever.
 God's love will be faithful in warning and His angels will flee from the wrath to come.

Figure 1 consists of two panels, (a) and (b), each showing a plot of the probability of a correct response (y-axis, 0.0 to 1.0) versus the number of trials (x-axis, 1 to 10). Panel (a) shows a sigmoidal curve that starts at approximately 0.5 for 1 trial and increases to approximately 0.9 for 10 trials. Panel (b) shows a similar sigmoidal curve, but it starts at approximately 0.4 for 1 trial and increases to approximately 0.8 for 10 trials. Both curves are smooth and represent the cumulative probability of a correct response over multiple trials.
